COMMAND FOR THANKSGIVING AND MEANING

Should Show Appreciation
For All Blessings That Have Been Bestowed

(By Maude Larue Ives)

In the United States and Canada a day is set apart annually for the giving of thanks to God for the blessings of the year. Originally, it was a harvest thanksgiving, and, while the purpose has become less specific, the festival still takes place late in the autumn after the crops have been gathered. Indeed, it is probably the outgrowth of the harvest-home celebrations of England. Such celebrations are of very ancient origin being almost universal among primitive peoples.

Plymouth Colony's first dreadful winter, during which almost half of the Pilgrim company died, had passed, and renewed hope had grown up with the summer. When the corn crops were gathered in the fall of 1621, Governor Bradford decreed a day of thanksgiving.

Great were the preparations—the few women in the colony spent days boiling and baking and roasting, and even the children were busy turning the wasts on the spits before the open fire.

As guests there were more than four-score friendly Indians, who brought as their share of the feast wild turkeys and venison from the woods. The tables were set out of doors and the company sat about them as one big family.

The first Thanksgiving, however, was not merely a feast there were prayers and sermons and songs of praise; and three days had gone by before the Indians returned to their forest and the colonists to their tasks.

From Plymouth the custom spread to the other colonies, until in time the governor of each issued an annual Thanksgiving Day Proclamation. During the Revolutionary War, eight special days were observed after Signal victories or wonderful deliverances from danger, and President Washington issued a general proclamation for a day of thanks in 1789. In the same year the Protestant Episcopal Church in America announced the first Thursday in November as a regular annual day for giving thanks unless another day be appointed by the civil authorities. It was not until 1888, however, that the Roman Catholic Church formerly recognized the day.

For many years there was no uniformity. Some states had an annual thanksgiving, others did not, and no proclamation was issued by the President. One woman, Mrs. Sarah Josepha Hale, the author of Godey's Lady's Book, took an intense interest in the subject, and for twenty years sent out pleas through the columns of her journal for a nationwide thanksgiving. Nor did she stop at this. She wrote letters to each of the presidents and finally, in 1864, her efforts were rewarded, for President Lincoln appointed the last Thursday in November as thanksgiving day. It was thus Mrs. Hale won the title of "Mother of Thanksgiving."

Since 1864 the same day has been regularly set apart. The President annually makes a formal announcement, and the governors of the various states issue proclamations calling on the people to give thanks. The day is not a national legal holiday. The United States has no legal holidays not even the Fourth of July but almost every state has legalized it by legislative act. Throughout the country, but especially in New England, where the custom originated, the day is looked upon with great reverence. It is especially a family day, and the very sound of the name brings back inevitable memories of "back home," of the old farmhouse kitchen and the pantry crowded with good things.

The Dominion of Canada, too, has an annual thanksgiving day, which is celebrated in much the same way, with family reunions and religious services. It is proclaimed by the Governor-General as a harvest festival, but unlike that in the United States, it is not always set for the same day usually it falls on the last Monday in October, but if harvest is especially early an earlier day may be appointed. It is not strictly a legal holiday, being dependent solely on the government proclamation.

Let all citizens in this community at this time—

For all that God in mercy sends:
For health and strength, for home and friends,

For comfort in the time of need,
For every kindly word and deed,
For happy thoughts and pleasant talk,
For guidance in our daily walk—

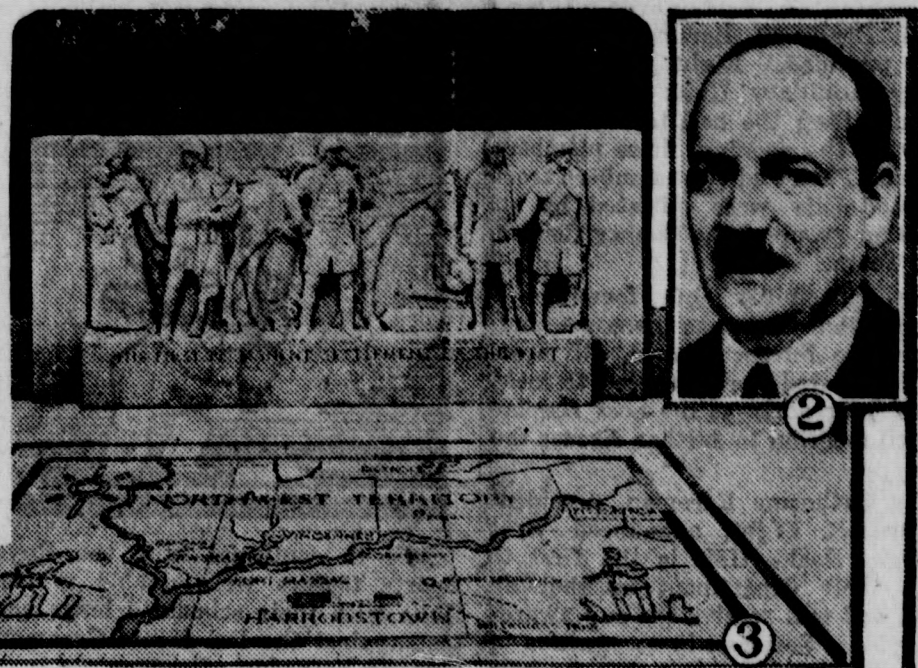

For all these things give thanks.

Gold Mining Big Help In Balancing Of Budget

By J. W. MARCHBANK
(Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work)

There's a limit to taxation and that is the reason any solution of the budget problem involving the creation of new wealth is worth intensive consideration. Here are wise words in an editorial in The Alaska Weekly right to the point:

There is unquestionably gold enough in Alaska which may be profitably extracted to relieve the strain on the federal budget very quickly and at the same time furnish employment to large numbers of our citizens.

There is no liver topic and none more vital to the welfare of the country than that of the budget. Many solutions that do not merit much thought have been offered for the balancing that must come sooner or later if our civilization is to endure. As editor Knight says, we must get the gold out of the almost measureless fields of Alaska to get back onto an even keel. It's the best way out.

Millions of hardy youths and men of middle age can be sent into the northern territory for the recovery of the precious metal. A double object is achieved in the carrying out of the praiseworthy plan: the wealth we sorely need is obtained, and the miners are building up the self-reliance that is a principal factor in

PARENT TEACHERS HEAR ORCHESTRA IN FINE CONCERT

The San Mateo County SERA orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Gilbert Green, played to a large and appreciative audience in the auditorium of Jefferson Union High School last Tuesday evening.

The members of the orchestra, through their rendition of the varied numbers of a splendid program, displayed great skill and artistry in both popular and classical music.

The beautiful numbers, sung by Miss Viola Mayson Helder of Redwood City and Mr. Edgar A. Vinal of Daly City, were well received.

The program was concluded with a piano solo played by Mr. Louis Parnies, whose fine performance testified to his skill as a great pianist.

The Parent Teacher Association is both proud and happy to have had a concert of such educational and enlightened value given under their auspices.

This meeting marked the fifth and last regular meeting of Jefferson Union High School Unit before the holidays.

An executive board meeting and luncheon will be held in December at the home of Mrs. Ronald Smith, 153 Woodrow street, day and date to be announced later.

Book Week was observed by this unit by the placing of a Parent's Book Shelf in the school library. The following books are available to our members: "Parents and Teachers," Mason; "An Introduction to American Culture," Rigg; "American Universities and Colleges," Robertson; "College and Life," Bennett; "Nostalgia and Quackery," Cramp; "Directed Study," Miller; "Which College?" Hale.

A moving picture, sponsored by the High School Unit was enjoyed by over 200 children Tuesday afternoon.

maintaining our present political scheme.

The government of British Columbia has done in a small way this year what the United States government can do on a mammoth scale. The main proposition before the Washington authorities is the establishment of trading posts. The horde of prospectors must be protected in every possible manner from the rigors of Mother Nature. Under proper direction, the placing of posts with plenty of provisions and supplies will be a simple matter.

Let's look into the work done by British Columbia. The government of the province, through its well organized relief department, gave out nearly 800 monthly grubstakes to applicants who wished to go out and search for gold. As is uniformly held by all oldtimers, inexperienced men must not be sent into the hills of Alaska, which is our concern, unless they are despatched under the supervision of capable directors.

We must realize the federal government is expending a large sum of money to men in some form of relief, men who could earn an independent livelihood by prospecting. The work done in the North would bring in returns that would help materially in keeping the government going. And I must say once more, what a boon it would be to the men themselves to escape from the thralldom of "doles."

An oldtimer has estimated that $300 would supply a man with tent, rifle, sleeping bag, tools and sufficient supplies to last through the average Alaskan prospecting season, providing he was well enough trained to supplement his grub cache with the game, fish and berries, with which Alaska abounds. Transportation for the prospector and supplies would cost about $200 additional.

It is up to the federal government to make the money available for the prospectors. It is an investment, not a gift. The advances to the miners would be repaid in course of time and the men themselves would be transformed into self-respecting citizens, as I have pointed out many times.

We are confident the far-sighted national administration, with the hearty co-operation of the new Congress, will carry out our notion for the development of the vast resources of Alaska and what is equally important, the rehabilitation of millions of our citizens.

WOMAN VICTIM OF HIT RUN DRIVER

Mrs. Antoinette Jackson, 393 Commonwealth avenue, who was struck and pinned against a street car by a hit-run driver, was taken to the San Francisco Hospital last Sunday in a critical condition.

She was alighting from a street car at Fillmore and McAllister streets San Francisco, an automobile skidded and struck her, forcing her against the trolley car fender.

The driver abandoned his car and fled on foot.

Local interest was added to the affair when police asserted the car was registered to Joe Soric of Bruno avenue, Daly City.

San Francisco police reported the accident to the local police department, who sought to locate and arrest Soric. They found that Soric no longer resides on Bruno avenue, having recently moved to 579 Athens street in San Francisco.

The injured woman is still in a serious condition at the hospital.

FOUR THOUSAND NEW MEMBERS IS COUNTY GOAL

Red Cross Workers Have Set That Quota As Limit
In Local Campaign

Local Red Cross workers plunged into a vigorous last minute campaign this week to make possible the San Mateo County Chapter's quota of 4200 new members by Thanksgiving Day.

They were spurred on in their efforts by President Franklin D. Roosevelt's plea to the nation for support of the Red Cross membership drive.

President Roosevelt's statement to the nation, in which he urged support of the Red Cross drive, is as follows:

"Our people continue to look to the American Red Cross as the kindly and always helpful good neighbor to whom they turn for practical aid in emergency. They do so with the assurance that this national relief agency, with an organization in thirteen thousand American communities, has not and will not fail them.

"In the difficult twelve months which have elapsed since last November, Red Cross volunteers throughout the land have worked in close co-operation with the federal state and local governments in their humanitarian labors.

"There service has not been limited to aid in furnishing the actual necessities of life, but has extended to the equally important field of safeguarding public health and of training their neighbors in the proper methods of caring for the sick or injured.

"At the same time the organization has continued to fulfill its obligations as our agency of relief for every community visited by disaster.

"The Red Cross is looked upon as the representative of all of our people in times of disaster. In order that it may continue its service to humanity, it is highly important that we lend our support through individual membership.

"I hope every one who possibly can do so will respond generously to the Red Cross appeal."

Miss Helen Chesebrough, county chairman of the drive here, said:

"The deadline is Thanksgiving Day. We hope that your community, as well as every other community in San Mateo County, will help us reach our goal of 4200 new memberships by that time."

CONSOLIDATED GOVERNMENTS TO BE STUDIED

County Board Asks Forming
Of Committee To Report
Feasibility Of Change

MAY BE MUCH BENEFIT

Definite action was taken at Monday's session of the County Board of Supervisors to institute a San Mateo City-County form of government if it is found practicable.

On motion presented by Supervisors John W. Pool and Al J. Witt it was decided by the board to ask Mayor Allan F. Hunt of Burlingame to appoint a county-wide committee of officials to determine whether the plan is feasible at present.

If this committee finds that the city county proposition is the answer to ills of governmental duplication, it is empowered to draw up concrete plans for submission to the board early next year.

Assemblyman Frederick Peterson of Burlingame has announced the reshaping of his constitutional amendment (enabling San Mateo to become a city-county at once) to fit the charter form of government. A tentative draft of the amendment, which he intends to offer at the January session of the state Legislature, would eliminate the 20,000 population requirement of the present state law.

"I am doing this to pave the way for a city and county of San Mateo, if the people so desire," Peterson said Monday.

The county committee is scheduled to include mayors, councilmen, city attorneys, city managers, etc., who will work with the county executive and the district attorney.

Declaring that the committee's ac-

BAY MEADOWS HORSES RACING TRUE TO FORM

San Mateo Handicap Calls
Many Fast Steppers
For Tomorrow

After watching thoroughbreds race on a muddy track for a week, race fans expect a fast track for the running of the $2,500 San Mateo Handicap at Bay Meadows Saturday, November 24. The race, which is the fifth of the major stake events being offered by the California Jockey Club, has attracted some of the best route horses at the new course.

With large daily attendance, horses racing true to form and a heavy play through the totalisator, General Manager William P. Kyne is highly pleased with progress of the meeting and predicts it will be an outstanding success, both from a racing and financial standpoint.

The Bay Meadows jockey colony has become one of the strongest ever to be gathered at one track. The recent arrival of Maurice Peters, leading American jockey for 1934 with more than 200 winners to his credit, and of Jockey Jack Westrope, who rode 303 winners in 1933, the first time the 300 mark had been passed since 1908, promises a stiff battle for riding honors. George Burns, local riding sensation, who is leading for the meeting, will furnish these stars some sterling opposition.

Four more nominees for the $25,000 Bay Meadows Handicap to be run December 15, arrived this week from the east. They are Faireno, Fleam, Dark Winter and Sun Archer.

Prior To Date Of East-
West Shrine Game

MAKE GOOD SHOWING

The Daly City Band filled its first engagement since its transition of name yesterday evening, when its members appeared and performed before an immense throng at Golden Gate Commandery Hall on Sutter street between Steiner and Pierce in San Francisco.

The occasion, which was followed by a banquet, was a monster football rally and high jinks to work up enthusiasm and interest preceding the annual East-West Shrine game, New Year's Day, at Kezar Stadium.

Our band has been invited to play at the last named affair and has accepted the invitation. The organization will be one of a number of similar ones that will appear at the annual contest, and will no doubt receive considerable favorable commendation from the spectators.

The program, which was arranged by Mr. Brenner, band director, and rendered by the Daly City Band at the football rally last evening was as follows:

CROCKER UNIT "DAD'S NIGHT" GREAT SUCCESS

"Old Boys" Revel In Good
Things And Enjoy
Every Minute

Last Tuesday evening the members of the Crocker P. T. A. entertained the fathers at a very interesting and entertaining evening. Not all of the fathers were present, but those who attended were not disappointed.

The meeting was short, but several of the standing committees gave excellent reports. Mrs. Eason, Recreation Chairman, gave an interesting talk on the Supervised Play, and asked the mothers of Crocker P.T.A. to co-operate with her by sending their children to the playgrounds of the General Pershing School every Saturday. She reported that there were about 125 children there each week, and if the mothers send their little ones and see that their neighbors send theirs, the Supervised Play will be a regular institution. The plan has been given three months to show what can be done about keeping the children off the streets when they are out of school. If these three months prove successful, the plan will be continued.

Mrs. Howe, Magazine and Emblem Chairman, gave a short resume of what can be found in the Parent Teacher Magazine, and invited everyone to her luncheon on Thursday. She made the magazine seem very interesting, and several who would not have taken it otherwise were anxious to subscribe.

Mr. J. R. Tittsworth, for fifteen years connected with work among boys at the Y. M. C. A. in San Francisco, and the father of a boy and girl, both in college, gave a talk especially for the fathers. He called his talk "When One and One Make One." The gist of his remarks were that one dad and one son, when they work together with understanding, will make one very fine man. Those fathers who heard Mr. Tittsworth's talk were amply repaid for their attendance.

The Girls' Glee Club of the Crocker School sang three numbers under the direction of Miss Mosconi, who accompanied them. Crocker P. T. A. is very proud of the work these girls are doing, and are always glad to have them with her. Mrs. Pauw sang two numbers, accompanied by her daughter Corinne.

Mr. G. R. Augustin, one of the members of the Jefferson District School Board, was present, and thanked the ladies for their share in helping to carry the school bond election. He said that work would begin on the new schools shortly after the first of the year.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

MISS O'CONNOR IS HONORED GUEST

Since Miss Tess O'Connor announced her engagement in September, she has been honored at many affairs. She was given a cocktail party and lingerie shower by eighteen of her friends at the home of Mrs. Robert Wall, who, with Miss Marge O'Connor, was co-hostess, recently.

Last Saturday evening she was honored at a linen shower at the home of her mother on Evergreen avenue, Miss Marge O'Connor being hostess for the evening. The color scheme used in the dining room was rust color and white, being in Chinese effect. Huge Chinese silk lanterns hung from the ceiling, while crystal chandeliers and autumn leaves adorned the table and room. Place cards were hand painted Chinese maidens, holding small parasols, while Chinese bridal chair, with the bride, was the centerpiece. Chinese rice cakes, with each one fortune inside, were also at each guest's place.

Miss O'Connor was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts.

DEVELOPMENT OF OUR SCHOOLS IN RESOLUTION

California Congress Parents And Teachers Adopt New Program

Enriching Character Through Education was announced recently by the board of managers of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers, meeting at the Clark Hotel, Los Angeles, as the theme of the next state convention to be held in San Diego the last week in May. Mrs. C. H. Turner of Redondo Beach, president, presided over the bi-monthly session.

Mrs. B. F. Langworthy of Winnetka, Ill., national president, will be a guest at the convention.

Mrs. Vesta Muehleisen, state chairman of school education and general chairman of convention arrangements, has been appointed director of education for the California Pacific International Exposition, which will open in San Diego, May 30, during convention week. Mrs. Turner has been asked to represent the Congress on the advisory commission on education. Following the invitation for a Congress exhibit at the exposition, Mrs. B. T. Hale of San Diego, state statistician, was named chairman of a committee to make arrangements for such an exhibit. Mrs. James K. Lytle of Los Angeles, and Mrs. B. C. Clark of Marysville, will assist.

Mrs. Roy W. Pratt of San Francisco, director of extension, reported the organization of thirty-five new associations since the September board meeting, with a total membership of 772.

Approval of the following statement of policy in regard to co-operation with other agencies was given by the board:

Where a parent-teacher association enjoys a reciprocal relationship with a welfare organization, such as Community Chest or Red Cross, the association may take an active part as an association in the collecting activities of that organization, provided this does not mean curtailment of its own program; where the parent-teacher association is in sympathy with the purposes of a welfare organization, but has no reciprocal relationship, it may encourage its membership as individuals to join in the activities of that organization but takes no active part as an organization.

It was brought to the attention of the board that in the year 1933-34, in the state of California, 197 teachers were certificated by means of examinations conducted by county boards of education—and this at considerable expense to the counties. Since there is already more than an adequate number of teachers who have been trained in teacher training institutions of the state, and this means of certification by county boards does not guarantee equal opportunities for the rural child, the board will request and recommend to the state board of education that a study be made of the problem tending toward the introduction of legislation which will eliminate this constitutional provision for certification.

A special committee was appointed to draft the following resolution in support of rural school supervision:

Whereas: Among the many perplexing problems facing the American people today, none is more important than the development of schools along lines which will effectually help the new generation to meet the problems of the new age, and

Whereas: It is increasingly important that adequate educational opportunities are extended to all children, so that no child may be deprived of those aspects of education so vital to complete development, and

Whereas: Educational supervision is essential to maintain minimum standards especially in rural areas where educational opportunities may be meagre;

Therefore, Be It Resolved: That the California Congress of Parents and Teachers reaffirm its stand advocating the necessity of a state wide system of supervision, and Further, that the California Congress of Parents and Teachers oppose all proposed legislation tending to restrict or limit this service and that local associations be urged to give serious consideration to this problem, and that legislators be informed of the stand of the California Congress of Parents and Teachers on this matter.

COUNTY COUNCIL AUXILIARY MEET

(Mrs. L. M. Zant, Publicity Chmn.)

The San Mateo County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary embarked on its second year when it convened for the regular monthly business meeting in Menlo Park Legion Hall on Monday evening, Mrs. M. H. Brady of Burlingame, president, presided. Eight of the nine county Auxiliary Units were represented, filling the hall to capacity.

During the evening, three members of Menlo Park and two members from Redwood City were initiated by an initiation group of the County Council Drill Team.

The possibility of forming a Council Glee Club was discussed and, due to the interest shown, all members interested are requested to meet a half hour early at the next regular Council meeting to further discuss the idea.

Mrs. Catherine Foreman, president of District Eight, announced West of Twin Peaks Unit is the first to make their department membership quota and will receive the cup awarded by Mrs. Foreman in recognition of their efforts. The cup will be presented at the meeting of their Unit on Friday evening in the War Memorial Building and all Auxiliary members in the district are invited to attend. Mission Unit received honorable mention in attaining their quota.

Interesting reports of the Child Welfare Conference held in the Whitcomb Hotel, San Francisco, on Sunday were given by Mrs. Foreman and Mrs. T. Louis Chess. Mrs. Lorena Good, Department Child Welfare Chairman, presided at the conference, at which much was learned of the extent of the welfare work by Auxiliary members among the needy Veteran's families in the State. Over twelve thousand dollars is spent annually. Mrs. Good has recently been appointed National Legislative chairman.

Mrs. Brady as a member of the State Advisory Board of Publicity informed the members that the December issue of the California Legionaire would carry an Auxiliary section, and where the Legionaire is not regularly received by a veteran in the home, a copy will be sent to the Auxiliary member.

To date no unit in the county has claimed the prize offered by Mrs. Brady to the first unit to attain their membership quota and Mrs. Brady urged that major attention be given to membership drives at this time.

Refreshments served by the hostess unit were enjoyed in the social hour which concluded the evening. San Mateo Unit will be the hostess at the next meeting of the Council scheduled for December 14.

Kitchen Shower

Mrs. A. Michelsen was hostess at her home on Woodrow street, Saturday evening last, at a kitchen shower given in honor of Miss Evelyn Garategie of San Francisco, who is to be married early in the new year.

DIAMOND HITS ARE NOT MADE WHILE IT RAINS

Boys Biding Time Until Fine Weather Again Permits Resuming Schedule

(By "Moe" Plansky)

Due to continual rain, the Royce Sports tossers were unable to continue with their scheduled league contest against the Del Monte Creamery nine, on Saturday afternoon.

The team is undefeated thus far, having two victories and one tie game to its credit.

In Gerstenberg and Sylvestri, Manager Pfeifer has two pitchers of outstanding ability. Both hurlers have performed in great style, and show more promise in every contest in which they start.

The receiving department, composed of Richard Bauer and Norbert Pfeifer, deserve considerable praise for their expert handling of the twirlers. These catchers possess powerful throwing arms and they can tag the old horsehide in great style.

The infield—composed of Long, Varni, Petrocchi, Pfeifer and Davies—have been very consistent defensively as well as on the offense.

In the outfield there are three fleet footed fly chasers—Smith, Opperman and Marovich—and they cover the outer pasture very desirably.

Every one of these youngsters is a graduate of the Jefferson Union High School, and they are a credit to the community of Daly City.

The team has shown uniform clean sportsmanship and, if they keep up their present high standard, should end up very close to the top.

HONOR DAUGHTER'S BIRTH ANNIVERSARY

Dr. and Mrs. F. P. Callsen of Wellington avenue entertained a group of their daughter Guinevere's young friends, Saturday evening of last week, at their home in honor of her thirteenth birthday.

Truck Runs Away

A peculiar accident occurred on Wednesday afternoon of this week.

CROCKER P. T. A. MAGAZINE LEADER GIVES LUNCHEON

Mrs. Howe, Magazine Chairman of the Crocker P. T. A. held a magazine luncheon and whist at her home last Thursday at noon. Mrs. Howe was very much pleased with the response her invitation evoked. She served twenty-one luncheons, and received over twenty subscriptions for the Parent Teacher Magazine.

The guests of honor at the luncheon were Mrs. Garret H. Converse of Burlingame Magazine Chairman for the seventeenth district, and Mrs. M. M. Elder, also of Burlingame, seventeenth District Chairman.

Crocker P. T. A. has already gone over the top as far as her executive board is concerned, as they are 100 per cent subscribers of the magazine. Mrs. Howe has over one-third of the membership of the Unit now signed up as subscribers, and she does not intend to stop until she has half of them, as she wants to have more members of Crocker take the Parent Teacher Magazine than any other unit in the County.

All members who do not already take the magazine, and who wish to do so, will kindly get in touch with Mrs. Howe at her home, 99 Acton street, before the end of December, as her report must go in at that time.

SENTIMENT AND THE BUGGY WHIP CAN JOIN HANDS

A surprising bit of information turns up among the news miscellany—the fact that $300,000 worth of buggy whips are manufactured in America annually. At an average price of $1 that would amount to 300,000 buggy whips that are still flourished somewhere in our motorized nation. We haven't seen such a whip in years, and the revelation of their continued dominance gives us a thrill—a thrill compounded of ancient memories, bitter and sweet.

The buggy whip was no mean factor in the civilization and social life of the '90's. Behold the display of them in any village store—a dozen, 50, 100 of them, suspended from a special rack, close side by side, differing in length, weight, composition, flexibility, the loaded or unloaded butt, the "cracker" of twine, rawhide or what not, and showing along the stocks all the color combinations that art could devise.

This was a display which a young man of 40 years ago would scrutinize long and judicially. For a nice discrimination in buggy whips might determine the elicit of his exhibition in driving a high-stepper down Main street on Saturday afternoon, and it might make all the difference between success and failure in his attempt to captivate the reigning belle of the town. There are more graying men than you imagine who owe what they are today to their wives—and so, indirectly, to their buggy whips.

Three hundred thousand of them made and sold annually! We know a lot of urban limousine riders who if they got hold of one would fall into reveries of it as sentimental as those of their helpmates over lavender and old lace.—Detroit News.

Illnesses Costly

People in the United States spend about $700,000,000 a year for medicine and drugs. According to the 1930 census figures there were 122,775,046 people in the United States. Now there are 125,000,000. This means an annual per capita consumption of about $5 worth of medicine and drugs. The figure is independent of money paid out for doctors or hospital care.—Pathfinder Magazine.

If you tire easily—

why not reason out the cause of this unnatural condition?

Your first thought may be, "I must eat more." That's not all. You should enjoy what you do eat. Frequently, the blood cells are low... and this, perhaps, is what makes you feel weak. If this is your trouble the stomach may not be calling for sufficient food. Zest to eat may be lacking. But what a difference S.S.S. makes when taken just before meals. Just try it and notice how your appetite and digestion improve. S.S.S. stimulates the flow of gastric juices and also supplies the precious mineral elements so necessary in blood-cell and hemo-globin upbuilding. Do try it. It may be the rainbow you need to brush away present discouragement over your health condition.

Do not be blinded by the efforts of a few unethical dealers who may suggest substitutes. You have a right to insist that S.S.S. be supplied you on request. Its long years of preference is your guarantee of satisfaction.

Our Thanksgiving Day

My Puritan grandmother swept and spun
And prayed to God on Thanksgiving Day;
Her soul content with a work well done
And her heart too earnest for pleasures gay.
But I like to think that her irksome load,
Travail and labor and urge and good,
Was joy—because she was hearing a road
A road that should be my way.

My Puritan grandmother blazed a trail
And looked to God on Thanksgiving Day;
And how can I dare to shirk or fail,
I who have such a debt to pay?
Teach me, Lord, as I kneel in prayer,
To lift her torch in my hands, to dare
To keep unsullied and straight and fair
The road that she made my way.

L. MITCHELL THORNTON
in American Agriculturist

THE Mortons had moved their big round dining room table into the living room by the fireplace just for the day.

"The fire will be so cheerful for our Thanksgiving dinner and then we can sit around and listen to the radio," suggested Corinne, the younger daughter. Mrs. Morton was trying bravely to hide the grief in her heart at the absence, for the first time from their holiday table, of her son, Tom.

There was an enforced air of cheerfulness as they all set to work to lay the forks and knives and make the centerpiece of pumpkin and chrysanthemums.

Tom had disappeared more or less mysteriously from the home town and the family circle more than six months before and no one, not even his mother nor his sweetheart, Beth Arden, had heard a line from him. The fact that he was a temperamental lad and had been possessed with the belief that he was a round peg in a square hole had led all those who loved him to believe that he had merely disappeared of his own volition but had not met with accident or foul play.

When the big table was fairly groaning under its weight of food and the turkey lay brown and tempting on the platter in front of Mr. Morton's place there was not a member of the party who did not want to quote the trite old lines, "There is no fireside, howsoever defended, but has one vacant chair." But no one said a word about the absent Tom.

"It is so nice to be included in your family party today," said Beth as she took her seat.

"We couldn't think of anything else with your own family so far away," said Mrs. Morton, kindly.

A general discussion of drumsticks and turkey anatomy followed as each of the children tried to be polite and yet make it known to father which part he preferred.

"Tom always liked the part that goes over the fence last," piped up Johnny, the youngest Morton, regardless of the danger of bringing tears to his mother's eyes.

"He did, dear," said his mother with trembling voice. But she smiled. "How about a little music while we eat, son," said the father after he had helped himself to what was left of the bird.

David, the family radio enthusiast, was only too eager to tune in something and drag forth from the air some of his favorite music.

"Nothing like a little good music to jazz up a family party," he said, turning the dials with mastery hand.

He got a station that advertised a good dinner program and resumed his seat.

One piece of popular music followed another with announcements in between and it was not long before the Morton family had shaken off its haunting loneliness for the absent Tom and was enjoying the program and the dinner.

Suddenly came a voice from the loudspeaker—a voice that startled every member of the family—and Beth. It was, undoubtedly, Tom Morton's voice.

PILGRIMS' FAST DAY

PREVIOUS to the start of the Pilgrims from Leyden, Holland, on their trip to America, a solemn day of fasting was decreed, the day before leaving, the 21st day of July, 1620. After the landing in Plymouth, the Colonists experienced great hardships, and as a means of evidencing their reliance on Almighty God a solemn day of fasting was proclaimed for Wednesday, the 10th day of July, 1623. On this day no food was partaken of from sunrise to sunset, but the entire day was spent in religious observance and prayer.—Washington Star.

"It's Tom!" said every one. "Listen!" said Mr. Morton raising a silencing hand.

The voice of the wanderer came clearly into the room.

"In the absence of P.N.D., our announcer for this hour, who wanted to join his family for Thanksgiving turkey, I will make the announcements for W.F.K."

"But what's he doing? How does he happen to be there?" asked the incorrigible Johnny.

"No one knows more than you do, Johnny," said his mother. "Wait and see."

"Anyone wishing to request special numbers from any of our artists may call Shopkins 8888." Tom's voice said after a number of singers had done their bit.

Mr. Morton rose quickly and went to the telephone in the rear hall.

The family seated around the dwindling dinner was breathless with interest and excitement.

By the smile she saw on Mr. Morton's face and the trace of tears in his fine eyes, the mother knew that there was no bad news of her son.

Mr. Morton sat down before he told his story.

Tom, it seems, had become dissatisfied with his slow progress in the home town and was ashamed to keep on moving from one failure to another and, in spite of what he knew was not the right way to do it, he had left to try some work he had always felt would be in his line—managing a sort of spectacular advertising department for a large store.

He had found a berth in a city nearby and had been very successful in conducting a radio studio for his firm. He had waited to let his family hear of him in just this way because he felt that it would make it a real Thanksgiving for every one—most of all for him.

"And he's on his way here now—be here in an hour and a half," finished the father.

"And the turkey's tail is gone," lamented Johnny.

"Never mind. My son shall have a wonderful dinner and—oh, Beth, you will help us to try to hold him, now, won't you?"

Beth nodded a little guiltily. Perhaps she had been partly to blame for his disappearance but she would make up for it now. Absence had taught her that she loved Tom.

Our Holidays

Thanksgiving day comes as nearly as any to being a national holiday. The President's proclamation calls upon the entire nation for observance of it. And it is a legal holiday in every state but Utah, where it is nevertheless observed. Holidays are appointed by the state legislatures and not by congress. There are, strictly speaking, no national holidays, although all states observe New Year's day, Fourth of July and Christmas.

"When a Fellow Needs a Friend"

Authority Advances Opinion It Is When He Is Very Young.

Dr. Samuel W. Hartwell, director of one of the largest child guidance clinics in the country, is thoroughly convinced that the time in his life when he most needs a friend is when a fellow is very young. In The Parents' Magazine the eminent psychiatrist stresses the vital importance of youthful comradeships and pleads with parents to take a hand in helping their youngsters win and hold their playmates. Says the doctor:

"Early and repeated social interchange between children of the same age helps the child to meet one of the most critical periods of the growing-up process. The child must have the emotional release which comes in the response of other people, if he is to control his fears and meet his failures." Then, test dotting parents fancy they are sufficient unto the demand, Doctor Hartwell adds: "Yet the child must not have the continual conflict that comes when the release is brought about through a continuance of immature relationships with parents."

Friends help little Bill to try himself out while he is yet young enough to be mostly concerned about himself. They help him translate his imagination into reality. They aid him in learning that happiness can come from loving others than members of his own family. Friends help the average child to find other reasons than the fear of punishment, fear of losses or feeling of guilt to give to himself for behaving in a socially accepted way.

Since, then, the role of friends of the child's own age is so important, it is the wise father and mother who provide opportunities for the child to meet desirable playmates, to allow the child free time for his play; to provide means for the child to furnish his share of play equipment; not to deny the child chance for taking part in group activities.

Doctor Hartwell reminds parents that their own choice of behavior patterns are not necessarily the behavior patterns their children prefer, and advises them for the most part to allow their youngsters to choose their own friends because: "Well-adjusted and happy children are usually wise in their choice." Admitting that it may be a mistake to allow too easily influenced youngsters to associate with the ill-behaved, the psychiatrist argues that because every individual some time must associate with others who do not behave as he does or believes he should, it is better for the great majority to early realize they can enjoy a pleasant relationship with others and not copy behavior if such behavior does not meet with their approval.

If parents wish to check up on the value of friendships for the young, all they need to do is to mark the child's responses. If he finds satisfaction in being gregarious, shows a growth in unselfishness, begins to like to do things for himself, develops loyalties, shows an ability to be happy and comfortable when not in the immediate proximity of his parents, then all is well in his own small world and with himself.

California Gallopers Scintillate In Stakes

By J. W. MARCHBANK

Victories of California bred horses on home courses emphasizes the fact that high class runners can be produced in the West that will not be shamed by competition with the fleetest the East has to offer. Up to this time California breeds have scored in several stakes at Bay Meadows, a clear demonstration of the speed and courage of home-breds.

The friendly rivalry between owners of Kentucky-breds and California-breds is a factor that enters largely in the steady upward trend in the sport out this way. The men beyond the Rockies have high hopes on bringing out their colts and fillies and naturally expect to meet good ones in their campaigning at Tanforan, Bay Meadows and Santa Anita. The race is a true test of the mettle of the contestants and the race, it goes without saying, gives the throngs trekking to the tracks the keenest of thrills.

Thomas B. Cromwell, the able editor of The Blood Horse, commenting on an opinion of an Eastern newspaper man that the breeding business should pick up with so many tracks operating, pertinently says:

"The mere fact of many tracks operating cannot, of itself, make the breeding business pick up, but if, through the operation of so many tracks, there comes an increase in purses, the breeding business is sure to pick up."

Editor Cromwell is in full agreement with me that too much of the revenues of the tracks is being taken by state governments. For example, here in California, as I have maintained for some time, the commission on the pari mutuel pools should be reduced from twelve to nine per cent, with the state getting less than its present four. As he says, too much is being taken by the states for privilege taxes and other operating costs, including salaries to executives. The sums paid to the states are out of proportion to the sums paid to the horse owners.

There must be a lower "take" and what that will come higher purses and a better game all 'round.

A perfumer says women should use scents to match their moods. And an Ohio editor says he knows one whose odor should be like that of a firecracker.

BOULDER DAM WORK NEAR END MAKE TRIP NOW

Spectacular phases of construction on Boulder Dam are nearing completion and motorists contemplating a trip to view the great project should do so this season, according to the Touring Bureau of the California State Automobile Association. Work on the dam proper is expected to terminate by next May. Many motorists are finding a novel and attractive tour replete with interest by combining Death Valley and Boulder Dam as the major features of their itinerary. The touring season is now open in Death Valley and both the picturesque California desert and the great engineering project in Nevada can now be readily reached in one great circle tour.

From Death Valley Junction motorists turn northeasterly and proceed across the south end of the Amargosa Desert to the Beatty-Las Vegas Highway, an excellent road leading to Las Vegas, the trading center for Boulder Dam. The route to Boulder Dam passes southeasterly from Las Vegas for about twenty miles, crosses Railroad Pass, and enters Boulder Dam Reservation, which covers not only the dam itself but also includes the modern industrial community of Boulder City, housing the workmen engaged on the project.

It is about eight miles from Boulder City to the dam, over paved highway. The best view of operations at the dam is secured from Lookout Point, where virtually the entire work lies spread before the spectator. Several hundred feet below the point may be seen the Colorado River, entering and leaving the diversion tunnels which carry the waters around the dam's steadily rising mass of concrete. Overhead, almost within touch, are giant cable ways strung from the Nevada to the Arizona side of the gorge, carrying huge cranes and skips laden with materials and workmen. The view is especially impressive at night, with thousands of great lights illuminating the scene.

Leaving the circle tour returns through Boulder City and Las Vegas, turns southwesterly through Jean, skirts the north shore of Ivanpah Dry Lake, and joins the outward route again at Baker.

Frozen Battery

When a car is operated in freezing temperature it is not advisable to add water to the battery except immediately before starting on a drive, according to the emergency road service of the California State Association. Otherwise the water may not mix with the electrolyte solution and there will be danger of freezing.

SOME QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Some Little Known Matters That Should Prove of General Interest

(By Maude Larue Ives)

Question: What is significant about the bower bird?

Answer: He is a native of Australia and neighboring islands. The name is due to the remarkable bowers the males build for the purpose of wooing their mates. These birds possess neither brilliant plumage nor the gift of beautiful song, and, lacking these attractions, the male at nesting time invites his chosen mate to a delightful playroom or bower. In some secluded part of the forest, under the overhanging branches, he has built a wonderful little room with twigs and leaves, decorated with shells, feathers or orchids. There he dances and bows like a cavalier in a minuet, until his mate is won.

The nests themselves are simple structures, placed in trees. The food of these birds consists chiefly of fruit, especially figs.

Question: What creatures are the most shameless cannibals in the animal kingdom?

Answer: Spiders.

Question: Who wrote "Vanity Fair"?

Answer: William Makepeace Thackeray.

Question: Who was Thor?

Answer: In Northern mythology he was the God of Thunder.

Question: What are the Bad Lands of South Dakota?

Answer: A maze of curiously carved ridges and clay mounds from which rise grotesque pinnacles and columns, topped with mushroomlike caps of sandstone. The region is mostly bare, varicolored clay, but some of the hollows and flat topped mesas are covered with grass and are used for grazing. These Bad Lands are located east of the Black Hills and bordering White River for many miles.

Question: Who were carpetbaggers and why were they so called?

Answer: After the close of the War of Secession nearly all the white residents in the South were deprived by Congress of their franchise because they had taken part in the rebellion against the government. This condition was taken advantage of by unscrupulous adventurers from the North, who took up a temporary residence in the South in order that they might control the negro votes

FIREMEN SET EXAMPLE FOR TRAFFIC SAFETY

Small boys and some motorists with a yearning for speed gaze at the driver of fire apparatus with envy. With the clamor of sirens and gongs to clear the way, it may seem to them that the fireman gives no heed to safety for himself or others as he dashes to answer an alarm. That the opposite is true is indicated by a statement of the California State Automobile Association citing a report by Fire Chief Charles J. Brennan of San Francisco to the Traffic Law Enforcement Board.

During the first six months of this year the department answered 3837 alarms, involving 16,969 movements of apparatus through the streets, traveling 47,600 miles and carrying 66,728 men, all without a single traffic fatality. Three firemen and one citizen were injured in sixteen actual traffic accidents involving fire apparatus.

This impressive safety record is not a matter of luck, according to Chief Brennan. Minutes, even seconds, count in getting to a fire, but firemen are schooled to make haste safely. Rules of safe driving are part of their instruction. Posters and slogans on firehouse walls emphasize that the good driver is the safety driver.

The department's freedom from traffic accidents this year is not unusual, the record being comparable with the average experience for several years past.

and have themselves elected to office.

The name comes from the old fashioned traveling bag, which was made of carpet with leather mountings. The carpet bag suggested the temporary residence of these Northern adventurers. The state governments administered under these conditions were the worst sort imaginable; enormous taxes were levied on the people and the money was frequently spent in extravagance and speculation, leaving the states burdened with debt.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR SENDS LETTER OF APPRECIATION

It is entirely impossible, in a letter, to express my deep appreciation of the generous support which you and your newspaper accorded my candidacy for Lieutenant-Governor, but I do want you to know that I am sincerely grateful, both to you and your associates.

The almost unanimous support of California newspapers was undoubtedly the greatest single factor in the success of my candidacy and I feel that I owe a very real debt of gratitude to the California press.

I am also mindful of the fact that many newspapers, in this campaign, disregarded every partisan consideration to serve the best interests of their state and country and I shall adhere strictly to this policy in my administration of the office of Lieutenant-Governor.

The only real cure for radicalism in California is constructive, liberal and progressive government which will stamp out abuses, eliminate special privilege and remove the causes of dissatisfaction by serving the needs of our people, justly, equitably and effectively.

I shall attempt to justify your confidence—and give practical evidence of my appreciation of your splendid support by fighting for that type of government.

FORCES OF RECOVERY UNITE

Evidence accumulates that forces bent upon recovery will hereafter present a more united front in their effort to bring back better times. The elements entering into this renewed drive against the common enemy—depression—under the high command of the President of the United States, have been more discernible since the memorial appeal of Mr. Roosevelt to the convention of the American Bankers Association in Washington.

The President's appeal for "an alliance of all forces intent upon the business of recovery," met with instant response from the bankers in whose hands are those tremendous resources which, properly marshaled, can bring production and consumption back to normal, with work for millions now without jobs. The prompt action of the bankers in asking for places on the President's "All-American" recovery team is regarded in influential quarters as a real milestone on the road to recovery—an augury of better understanding between the government and private enterprise.

From another high quarter came another significant appeal for cooperation from all American business in shaping the future pattern of NRA—the pattern of the governmental organization which is to continue the work of recovery after next June when the present Recovery Act expires. This other appeal came from that seasoned veteran of NRA, A. D. Whiteside, president of Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., and a member of the National Industrial Recovery Board. Mr. Whiteside in a speech at Atlantic City invited American business men to offer suggestions for the new NRA which Congress will be called upon to authorize next year.

"The government," said Mr. Whiteside, "is tending more and more to withdraw from codes where the Code Authorities know what they are about. In other words, Mr. Whiteside told the business men of the United States that it's up to them to let Congress know the kind of a recovery law they want."

Finally, the Chamber of Commerce of the United States struck a new note of optimism in a summary of national business affairs issued after the President's talk to the bankers. This summary declared that "further indications of a convergence of the general aims of business and the administration in promoting recovery, and a growing realization that it must come about through the revival of industry and employment, characterized developments of the last fortnight."

Declaring further that this new union of aims between business and the administration in Washington was revealed in a number of ways, particularly in the President's address to the bankers, the Chamber of Commerce statement went on to say that continued improvement of business sentiment is discernible and "the President's assurances that present governmental lending operations are not to be permanent and that private enterprise will be supported have been favorably received."

All of these trends are reassuring, particularly in view of President Roosevelt's plainly expressed purpose to curtail the activities of Federal recovery agencies in just such proportion as private agencies take up those functions in which government of necessity has been forced to assume leadership.

HIGHLIGHTS OF THE WEEK

Retail Sales Show Rise In October: Retail sales throughout the country swung higher during the first half of October, according to an analysis made by the National Retail Dry Goods Association. In a mid-month survey among stores in 75 representative cities the association estimated that department store dollar sales through the country as a whole increased approximately 8 per cent in the first 13 shopping days of October as compared to the similar period in October, 1933. This gain follows a 4 per cent increase in department store sales in September, 1933, as reported by the Federal Reserve. What was considered of especial significance in the results of the poll was a considerable increase in the number of unit sales in the reporting stores. The association figured the country-wide increase in transactions for the first half of October as against last year amounted to 6.75 per cent—probably the greatest advance in this figure achieved over a period of many months.

Five Concerns Lose Blue Eagle Rights: The National Industrial Recovery Board has deprived five concerns of their right to use NRA insignia. This action was taken after the Compliance Council had found them guilty of code violations. The concerns and the violations found against them are: Triangle Paper Bag Manufacturing Co., 943 West Sixth Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, failure to file statistical information with the paper bag manufacturing industry Code Authority. Clarence L. Kazmaier, 1407 South Avenue, Toledo, Ohio, violations of the wage and hour provisions of the retail food and grocery trade code, and failure to post store operating hours. Joseph Matuson, 169 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., violations of the minimum-wage provisions of the coat and suit industry code. A. M. Akin, Question Manufacturing Company, 2108 Sunnyside Avenue, Winston-Salem, N. C., violations of the minimum wage and maximum hour provisions of the furniture manufacturing industry code. Dameron Veneer Company, Liberty, N. C., failure to file statistical information with the lumber and timber products industries Code Authority.

President Extends Auto Code Until February 1: President Roosevelt, on the eve of expiration of the automobile manufacturing industry code, extended it until February 1, 1935, and simultaneously announced his purpose to begin a governmental study of employment stabilization and the reduction of seasonal factors in the industry. Besides issuing a statement announcing his purpose to institute a governmental inquiry into the problem of stabilizing employment in the industry and reducing the effects of the seasonal factors, President Roosevelt addressed an identical letter to Alvin Macauley, president of the Automobile Manufacturers' Association, and to William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor. This letter expressed dissatisfaction with "a number of matters connected with this code" which called for clearing up. It cited the lack of steady employment in the industry and the statements reaching him that the average earnings of workers have been less than $900 a year.

Total Of NRA Labels Gains 11 Per Cent: The total distribution of NRA labels to the apparel industries last week was more than 11 per cent above that for the week preceding, according to reports from the Code Authorities of 12 leading branches in the trade. Manufacturers were supplied with 27,977,569 labels during the week, compared with a total of 25,141,853 during the week ended October 13. Notable increases were reported by the Men's Neckwear Code Authority and the Cotton Garment Code Authority. The number of labels sent out by the former mounted from 2,785,800 in the preceding week to 4,347,600 last week, and the Cotton Garment Code Authority distributed a total of 12,875,000 as against 10,850,000 the week before.

Harriman Takes Over Lynch's Work At NRA: The National Industrial Recovery Board has announced that W. Averell Harriman will serve for a limited period as administrative officer of the National Recovery Administration. He succeeds Col. George A. Lynch, who is returning to active duty in the United States Army on the expiration of his detail to the National Recovery Administration. Mr. Harriman first came to NRA as New York State Compliance Director in August 1933, and subsequently was appointed a member of the Industrial Advisory Board, division administrator in charge of construction and machinery, including lumber and metal products, and special assistant administrator.

APPROVE SERA APPLICATIONS

During the four week period ending October 25, the Engineering Division of the SERA approved 473 applications for construction and engineering projects bringing the total approved applications to 2222. This is an increase in output from 15 per day for the previous month to 20 per day for the month of October, the SERA chief reported.

Approved applications represent a total of 1906 separate projects involving a total estimated cost of $30,340,000 man hours of labor at a total estimated cost of $22,104,000 and average wage of 61 cents per hour.

On October 25, approximately 750 projects were operating in thirty-four counties. A careful study of the labor requirements of projects in operation and those approved but not yet started, shows that work is provided for the present number of workers for a period of 105 days after October 25.

Nineteen hundred miles of road will be built by the SERA as work relief projects. Construction and repair of 274 school buildings is included.

In addition, work has been approved on the demolition of nine-seventeen school buildings, principally in the southern part of the state.

Work on public buildings other than schools, is provided for on 504 approved projects.

OLD HISTORICAL DATA OF THE COLMA VALLEY

Incidents of Pioneer Days and Characters Recalled For Our Readers

(By An Old-Timer)

When Lake Merced Was Dug
One of our friendly critics asks if it is good taste to boost the Lake Merced site for the bridge celebrations in 1938 in these reminiscent stories of twenty-five years ago. Yes, decidedly so, because, judging from the following true story, the beautiful Laguna de la Merced in reality came into existence at the time these stories began.

It is like this: Two weeks ago, when we mentioned Mickey Griffin as having returned from his eastern trip and how everybody was rejoicing in anticipation of his happy grand rounds. Well, there ensued the grandest Mickey Griffin roundup ever, with such Spanish Dons as Mickey, Jim Casey, Larry Shaw, Duck Sullivan, Jack Dennis, Pete Callan, Donald Ver Linden, Matt Grady, Joe Millett, Dennis Quillinan, Bill O'Malley and others forming an exploration party, all armed with picks and shovels and a goodly quantity of the "spirits of the times." These Spaniards were away a week and on their return reported what they called the Laguna de la Merced in good old Spanish accent. They planned digging a pond as a whisky reservoir, but, when the pond was dug to its present size, there came a deluge of rain, and ever since Merced has remained full of pure, fresh water, so the disappointed muckers had to continue their libations at the always well supplied Colma bars at a "bit a drink." 'Twas a tragedy then, but now—see what a blessing is Merced!

The lady we mentioned who is keeping all these "Old Historical Data of the Colma Valley" stories is skeptical about meeting again twenty-five years hence. Why, Katie, I'll sure "be seeing you" then, for I never pass up so important a "date."

State School Superintendent Hyatt estimates the California population at 2,037,000 in 1909.

One of Colma's aged pioneers, Mrs. Julia Chaine, died November 8, 1909, at her home near Lake Merced, aged 76, leaving two daughters, Mrs. Julia Kennedy and Miss Pauline Chaine.

Mrs. M. A. Johnson opened up a dry goods and notion store in the building next south of Kielhorn's Vista Grande Pharmacy.

Massa & Schenoni have enclosed the new Cullopy Hotel, corner Mission road and Market street. At the present time this Cullopy building is the Colma Hospital.

A party of pleasure seekers consisting of Phil Fahy, Supervisor J. T. Casey, Dr. W. G. Beattie and their families, with Professor W. J. Savage, made a trip to Black Diamond, where they were guests of James T. Fahy, city marshal, and Supervisor William Buchanan. Black Diamond is where the new steel works is located at the confluence of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. While there, Captain Cardinella took the party on a cruise to the interesting river towns of Antioch and Rio Vista.

Daniel F. McDevitt and Edward W. Thurman, San Francisco Typographical Union printers, were well appreciated guests of the Record editor.

Front Wheel Balance

Balanced front wheels have become of greater importance with the advent of new delicately balanced front end suspensions, according to the emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association. For securing the full benefit of these innovations front tires should always be installed in pairs and carefully checked for uniformity. It is also essential that front tires on knee action cars shall be kept inflated to the recommended pressure, else steering and other difficulties may result.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR THE GOOD?

Today it is easy to find much to depress us, much to deplore, much to shake our heads over. But it is an excellent thing to look for the good. It keeps us young. It gives us strength and courage to triumph over the difficulties that are sure to come before long. And the best of looking for something good is that you are bound to find it somewhere or in someone sometime.

Many of us do not look for the good (I mean deliberately)—and so we miss it. One of the best places to look for good things is close at hand. If you hate the office and despise the counter and feel that the scullery walls are imprisoning you, then it is your duty to yourself to find the good where you least expect it and it is there.

Is there nothing good at the office? No kindness? Nothing to relieve the monotony? Is there no satisfaction at the end of the day? And at the shop. Does no customer show you consideration? Does the day pass without a spark of humor? And the scullery? Have you nothing to be thankful for?

You should have a brave heart and a quiet determination to make the best of things, and the secret of it all is, that everything depends on you.

It is the same with your friends. You must look for good in them. You must be ready to interpret their acts beautifully. What they do and say can have two meanings. It is for you to decide.

Are you looking for the good in your friends, and the good they do? And in things generally, are you looking for the good?

It is sincerely to be hoped that everyone IS looking for the good!

MODERNIZATION CO-OPERATION BY BANK OF AMERICA

Modernization loans made by Bank of America in cooperation with the National Housing program total $1,229,714, it was announced today by L. M. Giannini, Senior Vice President.

The loans will be used to repair and modernize 3135 California homes, business properties and farm buildings with an average individual expenditure of $382, the bank executive said.

A survey of the first 1849 loans made by Bank of America for modernization shows that skilled artisans are the principal borrowers, with 273 loans, while public employees come second, with 258. Business men and clerical employees were equal claimants for third place, with 192 loans recorded for each classification.

The survey showed that inside painting and redecorating work had the greatest appeal for the borrowers, 643 indicating the intention of having this class of work performed. The 1849 borrowers included 599 who propose to paint the exteriors of their houses, 533 who contemplate new roofs, 427 who desire exterior repairs and a like number who are planning additional rooms. Heating, plumbing, cementing, and lighting were among the more numerous plans reported by the borrowers.

Does Away With "Awkward Age"

PATTERN 1978

This is a frock for what used to be called the "awkward age"—the years between eight and sixteen. Styles like this have made it one of the most attractive feminine ages. The model is as young as youth, but designed with the skill of a woman's dress. Look at the front of that bodice with its nipped vest lines emphasized by cleverly placed buttons! See the way the panel idea is prolonged in the seams of the skirt! Don't you like the sleeves?—they can be short or long. And please don't overlook the back view, with that nice pointed yoke.

Pattern 1978 is available in sizes 8, 10, 12, 14 and 16. Size 12 takes 8½ yards 36-inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. BE SURE TO STATE SIZE.

Address orders to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 243 West Seventeenth Street, New York City.

HOME HAPPINESS

"Would you marry for wealth?" "No," answered Miss Cayenne, "I couldn't think of being bothered with a person who is constantly worried about his income tax."

Censorship of illustrated postcards is asked by the E. N. I. T., the Italian government agency in charge of tourist propaganda. Some Italian cards. It says, are too gaudy, and many are so inartistic that they give such an incorrect impression of Italy that they keep tourists away.

EBONY WATERS

More than once he paused to see if she were in sight; to see if she were following him up the dangerous path which at times measured its width by inches above the ebony water. Here and there a fallen tree sent the foam high where the impetuous current broke against its bulk.

"Poor children," he thought, and then; "If there had been time to get a message to her I would have forbidden this. Dangerous—much too dangerous."

But he plodded on, thinking frequently that he heard the snapping of twigs behind him. "We can't talk long! We'll have to be out of this place by four o'clock," he thought, "or we'll not see our way back."

He slipped on a bit of ice and caught himself just in time to save him from going over the bank into the welter of hurrying water. His anxiety was very great. Berenice must never venture such a thing again.

The path had become a mere thread at the bottom of a precipice. The great fall hung just ahead of him. At its foot the vortex was in full swing. The whirl was dancing a mad defiance of winter; even zero cold could not harness it.

He did not care to gaze at it too long. "What a place! She must never, never come here again."

Turning too quickly, he slipped, but instantly regained his balance by a violent lurch backward. In the same moment he felt the heavy impact of something against his shoulder—a glancing blow—and wheeled around to find his hands violently and instinctively clutching the square green base that he knew very well indeed; the base to which was attached the old tree.

At the other end of the tree was Balder's dark and angry face, watchful, keen and sly. Wilton had a cinema flash of events converging to and diverging from this encounter. Moving across this screen were figures both familiar and strange—Berenice in her patient beauty; Haskell roaming the old academy like some were-wolf; the immobile waxen children. That glancing blow on his shoulder—was it an accident? He would soon know—and along the avenues of his mind approached another figure—himself, tragically snared.

"See here, Balder," he tried to speak with friendly indifference. "Be a little more careful when you're throwing rubbish into the whirl. You might hurt somebody."

"What are you in the way for?" The words conveyed more than their obvious meaning, and were accompanied by a sound, half laugh, half snarl. Nature in framing Balder on a great scale had perhaps for the warning of others presented him without disguise of the inner man. Over his broad, blank countenance something passed like a cloud, obliterating even his purpose; but Wilton instinctively felt that he was in greater danger than he had ever been in his life. Life! It might be measured only in moments now.

Then a terrible fear. Had this man been sent to kill them both—had he already killed Berenice?

He tried to think calmly and to decipher the black shadows on that huge face.

Balder said: "Let go that end. I'll give it another throw."

"You let go your end. I am nearest the stream."

For answer Balder's hand gripped the tree trunk tighter. Wilton noticed the bits of tinsel still wound about one dry stump of a limb.

"It's time that Christmas tree is thrown away," he said, realizing in the same instant that such comments could not but make his situation worse.

"It's my business, not yours. Turn around now."

"What for?" Wilton asked, trying to speak carelessly.

"Do as you're told," Balder roared. Wilton's thoughts raced on. To make a sudden dart for liberty was impossible. The fellow could overtake him with three swings of his great legs; only strategy availed now.

Balder seated himself on a fallen limb, and, in this position, so steep was the cliff, he seemed almost hanging above Wilton's head. The latter thought best to drop the base; and he let it down gently so as not to jerk the trunk out of Balder's hand.

"Pleasant spot," Wilton remarked, "though it must have looked different the day the Bracebridge children were drowned."

A grunting voice came from above. "This ain't an easy place to leave!"

"I mean to leave it."

"You do—do you?"

"Certainly. I must get back before dark."

"Suppose you never went back?"

"What do you mean?"

"Suppose you stayed here?"

"I have no intention of staying here." He spoke firmly, but his inner terror revealed to him at last what connection lay between his own imminent danger and a long-ago tragedy. The withered tree was the link—again to be an instrument of death. "Throw in your tree when you choose. I am going home."

Balder's laughter echoed even above the roar of the fall. "I weigh two hundred and ten pounds. I am six feet three in my socks. My muscle is iron. And you—you are just a school-room plant. I listened in at one of your teaching times. You said more about nothin' than any man I ever hear talk. You don't deserve to live, you don't!"

"And maybe I don't deserve to die any—more than—" he paused, then hurled his boomerang—"the Bracebridge children. Am I to have the same execution?"

He knew he had signed his own death warrant, but at least he could bring for one instant into stark daylight the suspected crime whose shadow lay along the corridors of Lost-land academy and haunted its decaying rooms. The great face above him grew quite livid for an instant, but no rebound of denial came from his lips. When he spoke it was in a matter-of-fact and quiet way.

"You are, you know, interfering with him. Nobody'll ever know what happened. No one saw you go up the ravine. Lord, it's easy to die in this gorge in winter. So many hundreds of ways of slippin' and fallin' that nobody'd think twice of how you cum to do it. You certainly was a fool to believe that note."

Balder was staring at him as if fascinated. "You'll never go back now," he muttered. "I wasn't sure what to do when I come up here. Now I know."

"You didn't dare burn that tree the day we were at the church. You had the key of the belfry room in your pocket; you didn't dare bring it down and burn it before Miss Bracebridge."

"How much is he going to give you for this job?"

The boldness of the question disturbed even Balder's poise. His snarl came slowly, uncertainly. "He don't make no bargains. He ain't open and square like that. He hints—walks all around his design, never comes out bold and free with it. But he pays high for little jobs—moving trunks or books—five hundred for moving his books after—"

"After you struck one of the Bracebridge children with this weapon and cost the lives of the others," Wilton finished deliberately. He knew he had taken away forever his chance for life, but in this last grim hour it was a satisfaction to wring out the truth; and it comforted him to add to the indictment. "Your master, Haskell, never wanted to go with those four young people to protect them, but to steal up behind them as you did. He urged them not to tie themselves together in this Alpine game they were so fond of playing—he urged them—not for their safety; he knew their aversion to him, and knew they'd do exactly the opposite of what he told them."

Balder regarded him with round, ugly eyes in which a tiny gleam of admiration flickered. "You're a psycho—what? Maybe there's somethin' in it. Mebbe it's gospel truth."

"And maybe it's gospel truth that when Jerry found you in the vegetable garden you had beaten him there by about twenty minutes, I calculate. And maybe it's gospel truth when he said, 'All four drowned,' you knew right away it was children—not sheep! You didn't ask one question!"

"You d-d spy, you! I knew you've been spyin' on us ever since the first afternoon when you walked in the evergreen walk with your cloak flyin'—like a great bat."

Dreaming

The problem of dreams is one concerning which scientists are not entirely in accord. Modern investigation of sleep indicates that special psychic forces do not operate in a dream nor does the entire activity of the brain rest during sleep, but it is always, perhaps with the exception of sound sleep, which lasts only a short time, only a part of the brain that rests. Some parts of the brain do not go to sleep but continue to work, especially after over-stimulation. There have been numerous instances where persons claim to have dreamed solutions to problems, which on awakening they found to be correct, but upon investigation it is believed that in such instances the subject was only in a partial state of sleep.

New Silhouette on Style Horizon

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

WATCH silhouettes! Startling changes are taking place in the "lines" of the newer fashions. The lovely creature centered in the group pictured is wearing a dress which tells at a glance what is happening in the way of a radical departure from the sleek, suave and beguiling mermaid type of formal gowns which have been gracing the evening scene this many a season.

Not that the glamorous form-fitting effects have entirely gone into oblivion, on the contrary fashion is highlighting any number of slender gowns for the winter social season, although even these are undergoing certain subtle changes which add greatly to their fascination. Perhaps the most outstanding innovation in connection with the sheathlike frocks now worn is their slit hemlines. It is with baffling ingenuity that designers are maneuvering these slits and splits and slashes that ease up the hemline to allow freedom of movement for the wearer.

At one of its recent monthly fashion clinics and style exhibits the Chicago wholesale market council displayed among scores of equally as fetching numbers the three ultra smart costumes in the illustration. They clearly demonstrate new trends in present and coming silhouettes.

The entrancing gown centered in the picture bears a twofold message. At the same time that it tells of the revival of quaint and picturesque full-skirted evening dresses, it bears tidings of the return of stiff grandiose stand-alone types of silks such as in days of yore were the pride and joy of fashion's elite. Not for decades have our eyes beheld such silks as these—crisp, rustling taffetas, high-grade moires, many of which are richly metal-shot, and satins of superior quality together with regal velvets, likewise an imposing array of glittering, sumptuous lame weaves which add yet more glamor to the pageantry of gala fabrics.

It is very important to remember about the new full-gored skirts that the flare widens after it leaves the waistline thus, as you will note in the picture, avoiding destroying the slender hipline which women so covet. The high-standing Medici collar made of quilted silver lame is as radical as is fullness of the skirt.

The narrow straight lines of the stunning supper-club gown to the left directly contrasts the new fullness just described. The very voguish fashion of slashing taut hemlines almost to the knee is frankly declared in this model. This velvet costume is superbly colorful. It combines black tulle (in Paris they call it tulle noir) for the dress and cape with a bright fuchsia tone for the lining, the gloves and the flowers at the throat.

A suave sheathlike styling is given to the distinguished restaurant gown to the right. This is the type of dress which calls for a dressy little dinner hat to be worn with it. Ultra sophisticated it is in fabric as well as line. The material is the new ribbed crepe. Lacquer-finished weaves of this sort are in high-style this season. The slit or, rather, opening in the hemline is adroitly concealed under the panel streamline train. Rhinestone buttons fasten the bodice above at the back and the sleeves almost halfway to the elbow. A gorgeous rhinestone ornament defines the waistline at the top of the panel back.

This story of new silhouettes would not be complete were we to fail to at least mention that in direct contrast to the robe de style and other full-skirted effects, there is a movement toward introducing empire high-waist lines topping skirts of tall sheathlike stature. Then, too, there are many form-fitting princess dresses with streamline fullness let in at the back via shirred, pleated and deftly cut flares. Of course, you should know of the new bloused backs and the Russian influence as reflected in the Cossack tunics now the rage, also in the recent tall turbans and the smart high necks, and especially the trend to things Tyrolean. The adoption of monk-like drapes together with cord and tassel fastenings for simple woolen daytime frocks, is another recent gesture.

TURN DINNER DRESS INTO EVENING GOWN

A dinner costume developed in black crepe and silver lame, the crepe skirt, the lame blouse, can be used for a complete new evening dress by simply removing the jacket-blouse and there you stand in a low décolletage back.

Many cocktail frocks and dinner dresses introduce beaded accents, just on the bodice or the tunic, with jet beads, sequins and rhinestones. All employed at once.

Your shirtwaist type of dress is still good—it seems to be having a long and popular day, remaining good for daytime or dinner wear.

Don't forget that daytime necklines are high at will, figure or select your neckline so that it can be worn up or low and open.

Pink and brown are a grand combination for evening. We saw a pink crepe satin with brown accents in the girdle and flower trimming.

Glossy Type Leather Is the Vogue in Shoe Wear

Smooth shoe leathers assume renewed importance, according to models seen at the recent leather show. Of unusual prominence are the smooth, very glossy types which have almost the luster of silk.

Combinations of different types of texture in like color in one shoe is another noticeable feature. Patent leather is combined with calf, for example, or calf with suede.

Heavy grain leathers, prominently embossed, are of secondary importance in the spring showings, but are still to be seen in many lines, especially in sport shoes.

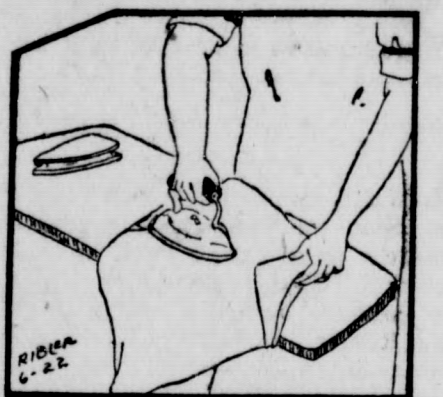

PLAID NECKWEAR

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

First we would call attention to the smart "lines" of the youthful velvet gown. It is the new beltless princess form-fitting effect which is the latest vogue going. This simple silhouette is exactly what women who know fashion are seeking. The big collar and wide cuffs are of metal-woven taffeta silk. The smartest accessory sets worn this season are made of metal-shot fabrics or perhaps quilted lame in gold or silver.

No Particular Age at

Which Genius Flowers

We look in vain among the lists of great in science for a biologist who made his mark when still very young. This is to be explained by the fact that the biologist must gather an enormous mass of information before he can make any startling contribution to his science. Lamarck and Darwin are examples.

Even in what are called the "rational sciences" it is not always the young who are the most brilliant. Descartes was forty-one when he published his "Discourse on Method," and Newton forty-five when his "Mathematical Principles of Natural Philosophy" appeared. It was not until he had brooded over the planetary motions for 25 years that Kepler announced his famous laws. He was forty-eight by that time. Lagrange, one of the great mathematicians of his day, was seventy when he gave definite form to his "Analytic Mechanics" (1888). At seventy-eight the intellect of Laplace seemed as powerful as it ever was.

From these puzzling contrasts it is inferred that men are not all subject to the same laws of mental growth. The truth is that it is impossible to foretell when genius will flower.

Why Hospitals Use a Liquid Laxative

Hospitals and doctors have always used liquid laxatives. And the public is fast returning to laxatives in liquid form. Do you know the reasons?

The dose of a liquid laxative can be measured. The action can thus be regulated to suit individual need. It forms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

The right dose of a liquid laxative brings a more natural movement, and there is no discomfort at the time, or after.

The wrong cathartic may often do more harm than good.

A properly prepared liquid laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin brings safe relief from constipation. It gently helps the average person's bowels until nature restores them to regularity. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is an approved liquid laxative which all druggists keep ready for use. It makes an ideal family laxative; effective for all ages, and may be given the youngest child.

He Gets Used to It

When a man is in office, his left ear must burn much of the time.

COLDS Creomulsion

Your own druggist is authorized to cheerfully refund your money on the spot if you are not relieved by Creomulsion.

WATCH YOUR KIDNEYS!

Be Sure They Properly Cleanse the Blood

YOUR kidneys are constantly filtering impurities from the blood stream. But kidneys get functionally disturbed—lag in their work—fail to remove the poisonous body wastes.

Then you may suffer nagging backache, attacks of dizziness, burning, scanty or too frequent urination, getting up at night, swollen feet and ankles, rheumatic pains; feel "all worn out."

Don't delay! For the quicker you get rid of these poisons, the better your chances of good health.

Use Doan's Pills. Doan's are for the kidneys only. They tend to promote normal functioning of the kidneys; should help them pass off the irritating poisons. Doan's are recommended by users the country over. Get them from any druggist.

YOUNG STAR PLAYS PARTS BY INTUITION

A woman's intuition, in five-year-old Shirley Temple, more than anything else, is what has contributed to the child's screen success, according to Director Hathaway, who recently directed the child star in her new Paramount picture, "Now and Forever," coming to the Daly City Theater, November 25 and 26 with Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard co-starred.

"Shirley has a surprising mentality," Mathaway explained, "a fine memory, and she's a capable actress. But her intuition is her greatest asset. She instinctively does things correctly, without being told. 'I'm continually surprised by her. She always knows her lines—and just how they should be spoken. Once a scene is explained to her, she not only does what is asked, but adds small details that make the scene better. I am convinced she has the mentality of an eighteen-year-old girl."

Shirley Temple has been in pictures for three of her five years, but only her last three screen appearances won her stardom.

In "Now and Forever," Shirley Temple plays the daughter of Cooper, an amiable, ingratiating confidence man. How his love for the child reforms him, and at last impels him to do one brave act for her sake, furnishes the material for a human and sympathetic story.

Mayor Hunt of Burlingame as chairman of the committee.

Supervisor Poole declared there is "considerable agitation" for a city-tivities should be centrally located. Supervisor C. V. Thompson proposed county form of government. He said, "As soon as a concrete plan is drawn up, the board will be ready to act."

A proposition to set up a separate county work relief program for those not eligible under SERA, with a $4000 donation from the San Mateo County Greyhound Breeders' Association, as suggested by Supervisor Witt, won endorsement of the board.

"A good many men are not eligible for SERA relief because of age," said Witt. "They are shunted to the already overtaxed lists of the social service. This $4000 could be used for projects, separate from the SERA, to take care of the situation."

In seconding Witt's motion, Supervisor Rosalie M. Brown declared that "more and more is being put on the shoulders of the social service."

Despite a request made two weeks ago, the supervisors are still awaiting a copy of the report on the recent investigation of community shelter in San Mateo.

However, a letter has been received from Robert J. Koshland, head of the county unemployment relief committee, which is directing shelter activities saying the matter is to be taken up by the committee at a meeting tomorrow, after which he will communicate with the board as to the action taken.

Supervisor Witt claimed that the board's order for installation of a culvert on A street in Colma had so far been ignored by the county engineer.

The complaint was filed by Gaetano Bocchi, Colma monument dealer, whose name headed the original petition requesting the work.

James replied that he had a "waiting list" of city projects "several inches thick." He said that miles of local roads could be cheaply maintained is he had a new motor grader.

A stop sign was ordered at the intersection of Middlefield and Willow roads in the south end of the county, after a dangerous traffic situation was brought to the board's attention.

BAND PLAYS AT COMMANDERY OF GOLDEN GATE

der for uniforms at least fifteen days before the big game on January 1, the members of the band and other public spirited citizens are working hard in an effort to collect the required amount, so there will be no hitch in the plans for that occasion.

A grand ball, sponsored by the Community Welfare Association is being arranged for the evening of Saturday, December 15, at Colombo Hall in Colma. The entire proceeds of this affair will be turned over to the Band Uniform Fund, and it is expected a considerable sum will be realized. A live committee from both organizations is working for the success of this affair.

However, it is imperative also that every person in Daly City—business and professional men and all other citizens—donate liberally to the Uniform Fund and thereby help advance the interests of the community by making it possible to secure much favorable publicity through appearance of a uniformed band representing Daly City at public functions here and elsewhere.

Go to the big dance and have a good time and do your part by supporting the band in every possible manner.

Anyone wishing to reserve seats at the East-West Shrine football game may secure reservations for places immediately behind our Daly City Band in the stadium on New Year's Day by arranging same through any member of the band committee.

Now! Let's go! Raise the required sum to uniform YOUR Band!

The many friends of Mrs. Mary Rudolph of Winchester street will be pleased to hear she is rapidly recovering from a severe case of influenza.
